

Intermediate Watercolor Art Series

This 4 week series is geared to those watercolorists who have experience with watercolor and are ready to grow, get loose and learn. Instructor Doris Glovier will discuss and demonstrate how to use limited palettes and how to incorporate only essential elements in a painting. In this series, students will focus on how to create strong and expressive paintings. Painting the blue heron (photo reference provided), a familiar local sight, will be a highlight of the series & painting in larger format will be discussed. Practice between classes will be encouraged to expand upon the learning experience. Supply list available upon registration. Register early!
Minimum of six students required and maximum of twelve per class

Students will use this painting as a model to practice skills and techniques.
